

School and Classroom Strategies: Depression

This Quick Fact Sheet contains strategies designed to address potential symptoms of student depression and should be used in consultation and collaboration with your school's mental health personnel or as part of a larger intervention approach. These pages contain only a portion of many possible strategies available to address symptoms of depression in the classroom. Strategies should always be individualized and implemented with careful consideration of the differences of each child and the context of their individual circumstances. Additionally, this information should never be used to formulate a diagnosis. Mental health diagnoses should be made only by a trained mental health professional after a thorough evaluation.

If you notice a significant change in mood in any child that lasts for more than a week or two, share your observations with the child's parent and/or guardian and with your school's mental health support team

Strategies for Depressed or Irritable Mood

- Identify one teacher or other staff member to act as the student's advocate, a check in person, and as a point person for communicating with parents
- Provide built-in opportunities for the student to talk with a supportive adult who has the time and ability to listen attentively
- Validate the student's experience and feelings ("I know that things are really hard for you right now")
- Provide the student with opportunities for "self time out" to regroup when they are feelings excessively sad or irritable
- Teach the student to identify their mood patterns and appropriate ways to communicate anger, frustration, sadness, etc.
- Help the student to identify automatic negative thoughts and strategies for reframing these negative thoughts; encourage positive self talk

Strategies for Motor Restlessness

- Design daily lessons so that the student has to actively respond to an assignment (i.e. write on the board)
- Integrate physical activity (i.e. walking on the track, shooting hoops) throughout the school day, not just contingent upon achievement
- Provide the student with an in-class outlet for physical restlessness, such as a stress ball or allowing the student to stand when completing some assignments

Strategies for Slowed Psycho-Motor Responses

- Provide student with written copies of class notes and/or assignments
- Allow flexible deadlines for work completion
- Avoid lowering grades for non-academic reasons such as messy work
- Allow student more time to respond when asking questions or making requests

Strategies for Feelings of Worthlessness and/or Excessive Guilt

- Model that it is okay to make mistakes; point out and make light of your own mistakes
- Model how to reframe mistakes into opportunities
- Provide the student with additional, meaningful responsibilities
- Discourage student from participating in activities that result in increased negative feelings about themselves
- Demonstrate unconditional acceptance of the student (though not his or her behavior if it is inappropriate)
- Separate student from peers who are negative or who frequently point out the failings of others

Strategies for Changes in Appetite

- Collaborate closely with the school nurse
- Monitor student's eating, but do not become a food gatekeeper
- Allow healthy "grazing" throughout the school day
- Provide opportunities for physical activity throughout the school day

Strategies for Fatigue or Loss of Energy

- Coordinate with the school nurse to allow healthy grazing on foods that may increase student energy
- Place the student in a brightly lit area in close proximity to instruction
- Provide the student with sensory-stimulating tools such as a stress ball to use throughout the day and offer frequent motor breaks
- Allow the student to self-select a classroom job/role of high interest (i.e. running errands, setting up computer)
- Incorporate physical activity throughout the day (i.e. urge the student to walk with a friend or teacher during recess or breaks, have the student deliver notes to the office)
- Provide the student with an audio or video recording and/or written notes of class lessons, assignments, or instructions
- Reduce homework or extend deadlines, as necessary and appropriate
- Allow the student more time to respond to classroom activities (both written or verbal)
- Assess the student on effort and on work completed rather than on work assigned
- Allow the student to demonstrate learning and knowledge through alternative methods
- Provide the student with an opportunity for a short rest or nap period if s/he is struggling to stay awake in class and if it does not interfere with the student's ability to sleep at night
- Plan testing and other "high stakes" activities for times of day when the student is most alert
- Identify student's interests and preferred activities and try to incorporate them into his/her daily schedule

Strategies for Diminished Interest in Usual Activities

- Identify the student's typical interests and/or favorite activities; integrate them into the student's school day
- Gently encourage the student to participate in activities with peers who have been a positive part of their life; do not force social interaction or participation in activities
- Encourage peers to invite the student to participate in extra-curricular activities
- Allow the student to attend group activities without requiring active participation
- Give the student opportunities to help their peers in areas in which they excel or to make important decisions about class activities
- Initiate conversations with the student when they arrive, leave, and/or take a break

Strategies for Difficulty with Concentration or Decision-Making

- Deliver assignments in writing
- Prompt the student throughout the day to use a day planner to keep track of assignments; provide support at the end of each day to make sure the student has all assignments documented and all necessary materials
- Provide the student with an extra set of books to keep at home
- Help student organize projects and break down assignments into manageable parts
- Help student to develop short term goals, even one period or day at a time, to help them feel that life is more manageable
- Provide preferential seating—based on student's academic and emotional needs

Suicidal Ideation

There are some signs that may indicate overt suicidal crisis and should be acted upon immediately by engaging your school's mental health crisis team and calling First Call at 488-7777 or dialing 9-1-1. These include:

- Threats or attempts to hurt or kill oneself
- Looking for the means (e.g. gun, pills, rope) to kill oneself
- Making final arrangements such as writing a will or a farewell letter or giving away cherished belongings
- Pre-occupation with suicide or dying (often expressed through writing, art, music, online chat spaces) in conjunction with depression symptoms or high risk behavior
- Showing sudden improvement after a period of extreme sadness and/or withdrawal
